

Memorandum

To: Megan Shosh

From: Charles Burkley, retired NBA legend, Owner Tire King

Date: 5-11-11

Subject: New Supplier will stop financial problems

I have decided to begin purchasing our inventory from a new supplier. This will be the key to turning business around. As you know Sales have plummeted the last couple years, and this new supplier has agreed to sell to Tire King for 12% less than our current supplier. Not only will this decision prevent us from being forced out of business it will earn us staggering profits; around $600,000 a year from the four locations. Giving you 50% of those profits also. Lastly ~~the~~ ^{Tire King} will not come under any legal action from headquarters because they are already ~~in breach~~ in breach of contract. With this new supplier I will finally be able to make my company vision a reality, also making you very wealthy in the process.

First, If Tire King does not act now we will surely be forced out of business within the year just as Terrific Tires was in 2002.